This method of education enables employed people to update their knowledge, choose new occupations and subjects, and also provides them with an opportunity to enhance their qualifications for career advancement.

(b) Relevance of the Programme with HEI's Mission and Goals: In today's time, the learner wants to acquire knowledge, whatever may be its medium. In this scenario, the distance and open learning system is proving to be extremely useful in almost every field. The main feature of distance education system is that it is not time-bound and space-bound. Urdu subject has developed as a traditional subject. The usefulness of Urdu literature in the distance education system also lies in the context that this subject can establish human values and dignity in the middle of the system. From this point of view, this subject ensures its participation in the development of sensitivity-skills with higher knowledge. In such a way, apart from the components of the traditional university, the students of Urdu subject of distance and open learning system are provided knowledge of literature and language through the tools of information technology (such as computer, internet, mobile, website etc.) and communication mediums.

(c) Nature of prospective target group of learners: This course of Urdu subject has been developed keeping in mind those students who want to establish themselves as teachers, researchers, writers-thinkers in the field of Urdu and in other related fields, but social, Due to economic, geographical and other reasons, Urdu is deprived of higher education or has left literature-education in the middle. Learners of Urdu subject can access this course through self-learning course material, visual and audio lectures, counseling sessions, workshops, information technology tools (such as computer, internet, mobile, website etc.) and communication without any restrictions, anywhere. can acquire knowledge at any time.

(d) Appropriateness of programme to be conducted in the Open and Distance Learning mode to acquire specific skills and competence: As the University functions in the Open and Distance Learning mode, the programmes that we offer are designed to meet the varied requirements of the distant learner. Keeping this in view, the course material developed by the Department is learner friendly. Each course is divided into four to five blocks, which are further divided into units. Each Block consists of three to four units. This number has been determined taking into consideration the learning capabilities of our students. The structure of the unit is in line with the guidelines laid down by the Distance Education Bureau, the apex regulatory body of Open and Distance Learning. The content is kept simple and lucid and follows the self-instructional pattern. Each lesson includes a number of self-assessment questions along with hint answers so that the students are able to track their progress as they proceed with the lesson. At the end of each unit, a list of other relevant books is also provided. Besides providing quality study material to our learners, the Department, following the ODL pattern, has defined its programmes in the terms of credits. In the ODL system, one credit is equivalent to 30 study hours i.e. the study input required for completion of the programme. Normally the MA programme is a 72-credit programme. This comprises all learning activities i.e., reading and comprehending the SILM, availing audio-visual aids to enhance knowledge, attending counselling sessions and preparing assignments. Thus, in the MA programme a learner is expected to put in 2160 study hours to complete the programme in two years' time.

Once a learner develops an interest in the subject, he can upgrade his knowledge by studying other critical material available on the subject. Once a sound foundation is laid, competence would be a natural corollary.

(e) Instructional Design: The MA Urdu programme is a two-year degree programme of 72 credits divided into four semesters.
